

Tailored. Not uniform.

Security solutions to suit your business.

Profile Security Services Limited

Flexible security that meets your needs

A Welcome Presence

Profile does more than simply meet you at the door. Manning office premises or offering concierge services, our security professionals are versatile and obliging. They're selected to meet a variety of specific objectives.

With a mix of static officers and security patrols they will handle enquiries at reception, tackle health and safety issues at work, administer first aid and much more.

Fully trained and part of your team, they'll add flexibility and value. As well as fulfilling a security role, they can support your switchboard, manage your car parks, provide a vital key holding role and carry out a range of other duties.

Whether this is a brand new assignment or you invite Profile to take on existing arrangements (under TUPE provisions), we will design solutions and services that reflect well on your organisation.

A Seamless Fit

In situations where your premises welcome large numbers of the public, we can re-align our security presence to be highly visible or quite unobtrusive.

We recruit people from a wide variety of backgrounds who bring customer-facing experience, tact and a friendly smile (and all the skills you'd expect should trouble or the unexpected occur).

We have years of experience manning shopping malls and other visitor attractions that draw large crowds – indoors and outdoors.

Far from standing out, we can integrate fully as members of your own team, uniforms and all. You set the direction, we'll fit the profile.

Fully trained and part of your team, we'll add flexibility and value

More Than A Uniform

Our front line can be highly visible. When you need an effective deterrent in a hostile environment, we'll be there.

In these circumstances, many might simply provide an intimidating presence. Instead, our security professionals take a different approach.

Assertive rather than aggressive, they take charge of a situation long before it gets out of hand. They'll defuse tension and use their conflict resolution techniques to ensure a positive outcome.

Our manned guarding teams and mobile patrols will be keeping watch whatever the season, whatever the reason. Keeping trouble at bay, around warehouses, yards and gated compounds, around the clock.

We Go Further

Every member of the Profile team shares our company ethos: to grow without compromising the quality of our service delivery, by looking after the welfare and development of our employees and putting our customers first.

Security personnel on your premises, their Supervisors, Operations Managers, our specialists who look after Health & Safety, the professionals who train our entire workforce – all share the same Profile commitment.

Always Innovating

As well as applying our talents, we're always striving for new ways to work smarter. Where technology can be driven to deliver higher standards of security, we'll innovate.

For example, we've introduced a rapid response CCTV solution, a stand-alone service that can be rapidly deployed where there is no access to electricity or phone lines. Construction sites, festival venues, remote locations can all be captured and monitored where you need short term, short notice cover or anticipate higher threat levels.

Expect The Best

In every situation, we recognise that your good name and reputation are at stake.

Far more than simply assessing headcount, infrastructure and placing a value on the goods you have under your roof, the Profile Management Team measures goodwill, peace of mind, brand value and other intangibles that contribute to the success of your business.

That's why we place such emphasis on selection and training. Behind the Profile uniform, you'll find quality in depth. Individuals that have been meticulously screened, vetted to meet and exceed the most stringent industry standards.

Judged Among the Best

Profile Security Officers – as well as the company's root and branch management teams – routinely meet and exceed the standards set by the security industry's watchdog. Measured annually, we consistently perform among the very top tier of security service providers.

Our quality standards meet stringent international ISO benchmarks and we are accredited by all the major national professional organisations. A look at our website provides an up-to-date snapshot. Go to www.profilesecurity.co.uk and click on the 'News' link, or see the details under 'About Profile Security'.

Profile takes you far beyond common preconceptions about security. We provide total, tailor-made solutions.

As our name implies, we'll match our profile to the specific needs of your organisation.

Profile means dynamic management

Our Figures Speak For Themselves

There are many reasons for Profile's exceptionally low staff turnover.

Our Security Officers are encouraged to take up full-time employment, to take a long-term view and rise to the challenges and rewards we set out before them.

We foster an approach where they continuously develop their knowledge and the understanding of the challenges they face. More than mere officers, they become practitioners in security in the broadest sense, fully trained before they start, and working up to the next, most up-to-date qualifications available in the industry.

A National Network

We use our nationwide presence to ensure our pay and employment terms are among the best in the business.

We look at competitor activity within our industry and at the employment map in the region where you are. This local knowledge means we can attract the best candidates and we can keep them motivated, with training, holiday and sick pay, incentives and a long-term career path. To say nothing of the benefits that cascade from knowing that our team is also part of your team.

Standards That Never Flag

Profile's management structure also ensures that your Contract Manager and your Operations Manager keep a close eye on your needs. And because we have offices in your region, you'll have no problems with contact and access.

Our manager-to-contract ratio is low by comparison to that of others in the security industry. It's designed to deliver consistent customer satisfaction, making sure we continuously assess your priorities, implement solutions that are right for you and that we exceed your expectations.

One Focused Point Of Contact

Managing your security needs is what makes life with Profile so much easier than with many of our competitors.

From the start, you'll have one dedicated Operations Manager, a single point of contact for you and for the security personnel assigned to your contract.

You'll notice a difference very quickly. Issues get sorted right away. Key Performance Indicators – agreed in advance and constantly monitored – stay on target. And Service Level Agreements live up to the stipulations you make.

With regular meetings to suit you and a flat management structure that connects your Operations Manager to the entire spectrum of Profile's core and bespoke services, you'll profit from every innovation and share best practice, whether you're in a single location or, like us, you have a network around the country.

Our manager-to-contract ratio is designed to deliver consistent customer satisfaction

Hands-on For A Quick Response

Working under locally based direction, our Security Officers are closely supervised and supported. Out-of-hours, our National Help Centre gives them access to advice and back-up around the clock, 365 days a year.

As a national infrastructure specialist, Profile uses the flexibility of its national reach to your advantage. When it comes to reaction time and manning challenging situations at short notice, we'll be there with all of our skills and resources.

Proven And Experienced

Since Profile was established in Aberdeen in 1980, the company has enjoyed continued organic growth under the leadership of its two founders. Our turnover places us among the leading security companies in the UK. We remain independent and privately owned, all of which means we can remain focused on our customers.

Whatever the size and nature of your organisation, you can count on our experience.

Whatever your needs, we'll provide security that's designed around you: Profile Security.
